PREFACE.

This work was begun as early as 1850 by the late Joseph Gay Eaton Larned, then of New Haven, Conn. For several years he made investigations as to the early history of the family, and obtained information as to the later generations. Through Mr. H. G. Somerby he obtained most of the entries in the parish register of Bermondsey, which are mentioned on a subsequent page. And from various sources he accumulated a large amount of material to be used in the history, which he intended to publish. He was, from time to time, engaged in this work down to his death, and had been constantly hoping to complete his undertaking. I had frequently corresponded with him and had aided him as far as possible. For this reason, after his death, the papers were sent to me by his widow, Mrs. Helen Larned, with the approval of his sister, Miss Ellen D. Larned.

After receiving them I was for a time unable to do anything towards completing the work. When finally undertaken, the task was found to require more labor than had been expected. None of the materials were ready for the printer.

It was difficult to ascertain exactly what information had been gathered and what was still wanting. I sometimes found indications, that in some matters, Mr. Larned had had information, which I was unable to discover among the papers. In the attempt to supply deficiencies, new subjects for inquiry opened, and thus the labor continued to grow to the present time.

Researches for this family history were made in England at my request during a few years past by the late Col. Joseph L. Chester. He became especially interested in the investigation by his failure to find any traces of the name, excepting those herein mentioned, either in the records of that country or in his own large collections. In a letter written not long before his death, he spoke of, what he called, the mystery ; and said that he bore it constantly in mind and hoped some day to find a solution.

I am indebted to Miss Martha E. Stone, of North Oxford, Mass., for a full and careful account of the Oxford families. Mr. George W. Learnard, Jr., of Boston, Mass., has furnished much information in regard to his branch. And Mr. Charles Larned, of the same place, has been of great service in collecting facts from many sources. Without his aid the work would be much less nearly complete than it is. Others also have aided, whose names I need not mention.

The abbreviations of b. for born, m. for married, d. for died and s. p. for sine prole hardly need explanation.

Those who have undertaken other similar works will be the most ready to excuse the imperfections of this; imperfections of which I am not unaware. I could give it only such fragments of time as could be spared from important duties.

LEARNED GENEALOGY.

In the parish records of Bermondsey, County of Surrey, England, are found the following :

Baptised.

1612, Oct. 29, Bethia, daughter of William Larned.
1615, Sept. 15, Mary, daughter of William Larnett.
1618, Sept. 30, Abigail, daughter of William Larned.
1621, Mar. 25, Elizabeth, daughter of William Larned.
1623–4, Feb. 25, Isaac, son of William Learned.

Married.

1623–4, Jan. 13, Thomas Ewer to Sara Learned.

Buried.

1625, July 26, Mary Larnett, a child.

Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary, vol. ii, p. 132, says that Thomas Ewer, of Charlestown, came in the James, from London, in 1635, aged 40, with his wife Sarah, daughter of William Larned, aged 28, with his children, Elizabeth, aged 4, and Thomas, aged 1½. (See also Hotten's List of Emigrants for the ages and names of Ewer and of his children.) He united with the church in 1636, and died in 1638.

In the Rev. John Lathrop's Records of Scituate and Barnstable, printed in the N. E. Hist. and Gen. Reg., vol. ix, p. 246, is the following :

"Marryed since my coming to Barnstaple, being Octob. 11, 1639 * * * my son Thos. and Brother Larnitt's daughter, widow Ewer, in the Bey, Decemb. 11, 1639." There can be no doubt, then, that the widow Ewer who was married to Thomas Lathrop was the Sara Learned, who had been previously married in England to Thomas Ewer. And since her father is spoken of as "Brother Larnitt," we may be confident that he was in this country and known to Rev. Mr. Lathrop. William Learned was here as early as 1632. Thus William Learned and his son Isaac, the first of the name in this country, are identified with the William and Isaac of Bermondsey parish.

There are no other entries of the name in the records of Bermondsey parish than those which are given above. Sarah must have been born about 1607, and there is no record there of her baptism.

A marriage license was granted by the Bishop of London, June 4, 1612, for James Hull, of the city of London, gentleman, and Ann Larned, spinster, daughter of —— Larned, deceased. This Ann may have been a sister of William.

These are the only traces of the name which have thus far been found in England, either of an earlier or of a later date. Col Joseph L. Chester has examined his own MSS. collections from Parish Registers (some 110 folio volumes containing about 400 pages each); the calendars of wills in the General Registry, from 1383 to 1700; the various lists of names at the Public Record office, the British Museum and Herald College, without finding the name. The name does not appear in the army lists of the civil war period, though that of Learner does. Col. Chester has also examined, with the same want of success, the lists of wills in the Prerogative Court of Canterbury, the calendars of the local registries covering Essex, Hertfordshire, Surrey, Berkshire, Buckinghamshire, Oxfordshire, Wiltshire, and the portion of Kent included in the diocese of Rochester, and the parish registers of Ware and the indexes at the Public Record office; the registers of the oldest Dissenting churches, and of the old French churches, now deposited in the office of the Registrar General, and many other lists of names.

In the lists of the French emigrants who were naturalized the name is not found; nor is any found which is like it. Nor was there any French name in England, at the date of the Bermondsey records, which could be translated into Learned.

The name is not found in the directories of the present day, either of London or of the counties in England; or in the poll lists, or indexes to county histories.

There has been a belief that the name was French. Perhaps this has arisen from the circumstance that the name begins with Le, or with L; thus suggesting L'-Arned. But there seems to be nothing to justify this belief, so far as any thing can be learned from the names of the French emigrants to England. Yet the absence of the name from any English records appears to indicate a foreign origin. The fact that James Hull would seem to have been ignorant of the Christian name of his wife's father may also be a slight indication of this. William, the emigrant, wrote his name Learned. The variations in the spelling in the Bermondsey parish register and the spelling in Rev. Mr. Lathrop's records, show that the accent was on the first syllable, as it was then pronounced.

The name of William Learned's wife, Goodith, whether a corruption of Goditha, or a mistake for Judith, seems not to be foreign.

The name seems to have been pronounced "Larned," judging from the Bermondsey records, and from Dr. Lathrop's diary. It is not probable, therefore, that it was a corruption of Leonard.

In regard to the orthography of the name there is some uncertainty. William, the ancestor in this country wrote "Learned." (Bond's Watertown.) The name must have been sometimes pronounced "Larned." (See Rev. Dr. Lathrop's diary above cited, and the extract from the minutes of the court.) Sometimes, "Lerned," as in the town orders and in the discharge of his son, Isaac. The extract from the records of Bermondsey, has "Learned" and "Larned" and "Larnett."

In may reasonably be conjectured that the true spelling was "Learned," and that the true pronunciation was "Larned." The other pronunciation, "Lerned," may have come from a desire to pronounce according to the spelling.

Many of the North Oxford branch of the family have spelled the name "Learned" and pronounced it "Larned." The old epitaphs are generally "Larned" and some of the Oxford branch have so spelled the name. The Thompson branch has spelled and pronounced it "Larned;" excepting, however, most of the descendants of Ebenezer[5], who have spelled and pronounced it "Learned." In Oxford, Webster and Dudley it has generally been spelled "Larned."

The members of one family in Hopkinton, N. H., have spelled the name "Lerned." Some in Boston have spelled it "Learnard," and some "Larnard."

In the following pages the variations in spelling are sometimes, but not always, noted.

1 WILLIAM LEARNED[1]. The first admission to the present First church of Charlestown was, according to its records, as follows: "1632, 10 mo., day 6, William Learned and Goodith, his wife, were admitted." (N. E. H. & G. Reg., vol. xxxiii, page 191). This name Goodith, is said by Rev. Samuel Sewall to be, not a corrupt spelling of Judith, but an old English name, from the Saxon, Goditha. It was common at that time. In one instance, at least, about this period a child, baptised Goodith, was, however, always called Judith. (Col. Joseph L. Chester.)

It has been said, but whether upon good authority is not known, that William Learned came over in Feb., 1624. But this seems improbable, since his son Isaac was born that month, and his daughter Mary was buried in England, July, 1625.

He did not belong to the Boston church. The last admissions to that church, prior to the going off of the Charlestown residents, are those of Anne, wife of John Elliott, Thomas and Elizabeth James, and William Pierce; who doubtless came in the Lion of Sept. 16. (Letter from Hon. James Savage.)

The Charlestown members were dismissed Oct. 14, 1632, and formed a distinct church, Nov. 2, 1632, (Frothingham's, Charlestown, p. 70.) See the original covenant, stating that the thirty-five persons were dismissed "the 14th of the eaght moneth, 1632" (N. E. H. & G. Reg., vol. xxiii, 190.) It must have been about two months afterwards that William Learned and his wife were admitted to the church. But in the Charlestown Records, at page 6 is a list of such as were admitted inhabitants of the town in 1630, unto whom planting lots were given; and among them his name appears.

Mr. Palfrey, however, says that these records are not of the best authority, not having been made till more than thirty years afterwards. (Palfrey's New Eng. I., 289, n.) And if this be so, the later date for the coming over of William Learned is the more probable, viz, 1632.

His name also appears in a list of inhabitants, the 9th of January, 1633, and again in 1635 and in 1636. Shares of hay ground were assigned to him; and again a portion of marsh land, Feb. 11, 1637. In Wyman's Charlestown Genealogies, vol. ii, p. 611, seven different parcels of land are described, which belonged to him.

In 1634, May 14th, he was admitted freeman. His name appears as one of the signatures to the town order for the appointment of eleven selectmen, February 13, 1634-1635. (Frothingham's Charlestown, p. 50.) On Feb. 13, 1635-6, he was appointed a selectman. About this time he is mentioned with twenty-eight others as having "willingly surrendered for the good of the town part of their land on Mystic side."

March 2, 1637, he was chosen one of four, instead of Goodman Brakenbury, to divide for stinting the common land.

April 6, 1637, he and Goodman Thomas Ewer, were desired to lay out widow Wilkin's two acres. About the same time he and several others were desired "to goe with Mr. Winthrop to lay out bounds between us and him."

At the time of the controversy which originated with Mrs. Anne Hutchinson, when the general court condemned and banished Rev. John Wheelwright, William Learned was one of the signers of the remonstrance against that proceeding. (Frothingham's Charlestown 73; see Palfrey's New England I, 485.) In the minutes of the court, I, 205, it is recorded, "Willi. Larnet, acknowledged his fault in subscribing the seditious writing and desiring his name to be crossed out, it was yelded to him and crossed."

Feb. 12, 1637-8, it was referred to Mr. Greene and to William Learned to settle Mr. Witherell's wages for the year past. William Witherell was the schoolmaster.

"1638 the 26 of the 2d moneth, Mr. Increase Nowell, Mr. Zach. Sims, Mr. Jno. Greene, Mr. John Hayward, Sergt. Ralph Sprague and William Learned were desired to consider of some things tending toward a body of laws." As he was thus made one of a commission of some importance, we may suppose that he was a man of good sense, and as his name has no title prefixed, he was probably not a man of any high position.

In 1640 a movement was on foot to settle Woburn. The first meeting for the purpose was held at the house of Mr. Thomas Greene, December 18th; and town orders were there signed by thirty-two persons, and among them by William Learned, (spelled by the clerk Lernedt). He was one of the seven who, the 14th of August, 1642, formed the first church of Woburn, (Woburn town records; Sewall's Woburn, p. 20; Johnson's Wonder Working Prov., p 17.) On the 24th of November, it is recorded that he freely gave up his lot for the use of the town, which gave it to Thomas Richardson, and agreed to give to William Learned the like for quantity and quality. It was afterwards ordered that he should have seventy-two acres laid out to his son Isaac, in recompense for the sixty-six which he had thus given.

On the 13th of April, 1643, he was chosen constable and one of the selectmen; and again February 9, 1644-5. Some additional land was given him in Sept., 1645. Another order, two months later, says that he was to have six acres and a half for a house lot and farm in meadow, and the residence, being sixty acres, "the one-halfe in forest field and the other halfe in playne field."

He died March 1, 1646, two days before the selectmen were chosen for the third term; and thus he held the offices of selectman and constable at his death. (Qu. 1646–7; as he is named in the town rate, 22d of 10 mo. 1646.) Judging from the age of his daughter, Sarah, he must have been born as early as 1590; and would thereefor have been at least 56 at his death. He left a widow who had an annuity. On the 4th of October, 1648, his son "Isack Lerned was discharged of his accompt consarning his father, who, deseased, constable." The account had been settled in part, Sept. 26.

A petition to the General Court, signed by thirty-six women "of Malden and Charlestown of the Mystick side," Oct. 28, 1651, in favor of Rev. Marmaduke Matthews, has among the signatures that of Jane Learned. (Frothingham's Charlestown, p. 126.)

The will of Gabriel Wheldon, Malden, 1653, 11, 12, has, as one witness, Janes Larnard. In N. E. Gen. Reg. vol. xvi., 75, this is printed "James." But a careful examination is said to show the word to be Janes. The other witness is John Upham; probably the same with the appraiser mentioned below. A fac simile is here given.

Janes Larnard

In Middlesex County Records, under date of 1660, 11 mo., 24 day, appears the death of "Widow Sarah Learned, of Malden." (N. E. Gen. Reg., vol. x., 162.)

An inventory of the estate of Widow Jane Learned, deceased, in Malden, was made 12 mo., 1660, of which Job Laine and John Upham were appraisers and administration was granted 1661, 2 mo., 2 day, to Ralph Shepard. This Ralph Shepard may probably be the person who came from London in 1635, and who d. Sept. 11, 1693, æ. 90, and was buried at Malden. (N. E. Gen. Reg., vol. iv., 66; Savage Gen. Dict.)

This inventory amounts to £41, 18*s.* 11*d.*, and includes an item, "Widow Learned, at Chelmsford, debtor, £6." (Appendix A.)

By the inventory of Isaac[2] Learned's estate, mentioned hereafter, it will be seen that he was indebted to the Widow Learned three pounds per annum during her widowhood. That was undoubtedly an indebtedness to the widow of his father, William[1], with which he had been charged either by the will of his father or on the settlement of the estate. In 1660 Isaac[2] was dead and his estate, since April 6, 1658, had been in the hands of his widow, Mary, and her father, Isaac Steans, as administratrix and administrator. This Mary, not then married to her second husband, Burg, must have been the "Widow Learned at Chelmsford," who was indebted to the estate of Widow Jane Learned, deceased; and the £6 for which she was thus indebted were probably the two years' annuity, which had accrued since the death of Isaac. We may therefore feel confident that Jane Learned, whose inventory is above mentioned, was the widow of William[1]. Probably, also, "Widow Sarah Learned," mentioned in the Middlesex records, is the same person, the dates come so closely together. There is not, so far as can be learned, any one except William[1] Learned whose widow either of these could be. It is not unreasonable to believe that the witness to the Wheldon will was also the same; and that "Janes" was in some way written for "Jane." If so, "Sarah" is perhaps a mistake. (Bond's Watertown; Barry's Framingham.) Jane may have been a second wife of William[1]. Nothing is known of Goodith except her admission to the church, as mentioned above. It may be that Jane and Goodith are the same person.

The children of William[1], so far as known, are those mentioned above; all born in England except, perhaps, Sarah, whose place of birth is not known.

2 i Sarah[2], b. about 1608.

3 vi Isaac[2], bap. Feb. 25, 1623-4.

Nothing more is known of any of these except of Sarah and Isaac. A fac-simile of the signature to the town order is here given.

2 SARAH[2] (William[1]), as above stated, married in England Jan'y 13, 1623-4, Thomas Ewer, a tailor, and came with him to this country in the James, June 1635. (See Hotten's Lists of Emigrants p. 88.) Was admitted to the church in Charlestown, Dec. 12, 1635. He was admitted Jan'y 3, 1635-6. After his death in 1638, she married, second, Dec. 11, 1639, at Barnstable, Thomas Lathrop, eldest son of Rev. John Lathrop, who was b. in England about 1621, and joined his father's church, May 14, 1637. Children :

i Sarah[3] Ewer, m., June 18, 1645, Thomas Blossom, secretary of Plymouth.

and afterwards m. third, William Mixer, of Watertown, as his third wife, and was living 1735.

viii Bethiah[3] Lathrop, b. July 22, 1649; m., July, 1668, John Hinckley, d. July 10, 1694.

3. ISAAC[2] (William[1]), was born Feb. 25, 1623, in Bermondsey parish, county Surrey, England, and probably came with his father to this country, when about seven or eight years old. He probably went with his father, when about seventeen or eighteen years old, from Charlestown to Woburn. He married, at Woburn, July 9, 1646, Mary, daughter of Isaac Sternes, of Watertown, who was born in England and bapt. Jan. 26, 1626, in the parish of Nayland, Suffolk. April 2, 1652, he sold his house and lands in Woburn to Bartholomew Pierson, of Watertown, and removed to Chelmsford, where he died, Nov. 27, 1657. (County records say Dec. 4.) His inventory, dated Dec. 7, 1657, amounted to £187 18*s.* 6*d.* April 6, 1658, administration was granted to widow Mary and her father, Isaac Sterne. Estate was indebted to Widow Learnett £3 per annum during widowhood. (For the inventory, see appendix B.) The record of his marriage is in the Woburn records, although his wife came from Watertown.

Lands were repeatedly laid out for him in Woburn, both before and after his father's death. The last time his name appears in the records is when he was appointed, Jan. 4, 1651–2, on a committee to lay out a drift way for cattle, etc., through Henry Brock's lot, near Horn pond.

He was chosen one of the selectmen of Chelmsford, Dec. 22, 1654; sergeant of the (train) band March 24, 1656; a committee to lay out certain meadow lands, Jan. 11, 1656. App. Comm to decide small cases at Chelmsford.

In the office of the Secretary of State, Boston, vol. 112, p. 80, is a petition signed by him for a grant of additional land to Chelmsford, dated May 7, 1656. A petition from Woburn, signed by him, "Isaac Larnitt," and by others, is printed in Mass. Hist. Coll., 3d series, vol. i, p. 38 to 45; in which the petitioners remonstrate against an order forbidding any person to undertake a constant course of preaching, or prophesying, without the approbation of the elders of the four next churches or of the County Court.

The Chelmsford records contain several grants of land to him. At page 162 is a record of such land, including house lot, upland and meadow, purporting to have been originally granted January 26, 1659, and attested as follows: "A true copy of the original in Town Book, page 58, and here entered this 20th of June, 1705;" also on the same page a copy of a similar grant of thirty acres, originally made Oct, 24, 1664. Feb. 9, 1708, thirty acres of land, of the heirs of Isaac Larned, apparently the same last mentioned, laid out at further Tadmuck, were exchanged for another tract (page 147). At page 164 aer given the bounds of the meadow of Isaac Larnard lying at Great Tadmuck. At page 165 the renewal of the bounds between lot of Isaac Larned and Joseph Parker, lying in the pine plain near the Crain meadow, dated January 29, 1711, recorded Feb. 1, 1711. Under date of Nov. 24, 1665, John Parker, Isaac Learned and Thomas Chamberline, "sometime inhabitants of Woburn," planters, sell to George Farley, of Billerica, sundry parcels of land in Billerica, which they bought of Thomas Dudley, Esq., dec'd. But this deed is not executed by Isaac Learned. (Register of Deeds, Middlesex, vol. iii, p. 181.) His widow, Mary, was married to John Burg, late of Weymouth, June 7, 1662, by Capt. Johnson, of Woburn. (Records of Chelmsford.) The proposed division of Isaac Learned's estate, April 1, 1662, signed by Mary Learned and Isaac Sterne, had been witnessed by John Burg. (Middlesex Court Files, p. 141½.) April 7, 1664, the court allowed the division of the estate between John Burg and the children of Isaac Learned. (id. vol. 2, p. 5), and following this is an "inventory of the estate belonging to Mary Lernet, widow, now in the hands of John Burg, of Chelmsford," her surviving husband. dated Dec. 21, 1663, and amounting to £222. She must, therefore, have died within eighteen months after her second marriage. 1673, Sept. 23, there was a division of the estate of Isaac Learned.

[Isaac Sternes, who is above mentioned as the father of Mary, wife of Isaac Learned, came to America in 1630, probably from the parish of Nayland, in Suffolk, and settled in Watertown. He was admitted a freeman May 18, 1631, the earliest date of any such admission. He was selectman in 1659, 1670 and 1671. In 1647, with Mr. William Biscoe, he had charge of the first bridge of which any mention is made, over the Charles river, at Watertown. He died June 19, 1671, leaving a widow, Mary, who died

April 2, 1677. The inventory of his estate shows him to have been, for those days, in comparative affluence. It included forty-seven parcels of land, amounting to four hundred and sixty-seven acres, with a proportionate quantity of stock, farming utensils, and household goods ; the whole value amounting to £524 4*s.* 0*d.* He had, before his death, given portions to each of his children. He made a will five days previous to his death, giving, among other items, to his grandchildren, "the children of my oldest son, John Sternes, fower score pounds," making, with what he had previously given, a double portion ; to his grandchildren, "the children of my daughter, Mary, deceased, five and thirty pounds ; my grandchild Isaac Lernet, to have ten pounds of the said 35 pounds." All of the descendants of Isaac[2] Learned are also descendants of Isaac Sternes through his daughter, Mary. There were also numerous other intermarriages. His son John, one of the first settlers of Billerica, m., 2d, at Barnstable, Dec., 1656, Mary, daughter of Thomas and Sarah[2] (Learned) Lathrop.

For a full account of the family and descendants of Isaac Sternes, see Bond's Watertown, p. 450.]

From the two remaining, Isaac[3] and Benoni[3], in this third generation, are descended all who bear the name.

8 ISAAC[3] (Isaac[2], William), m., July 23, 1679, Sarah Bigelow, b. Sept. 29, 1659, dau. of John and Sarah (Warren) Bigelow, of Watertown, and settled in Framingham, near the beautiful pond of 36 acres, still called from him, Learned's pond. He was a soldier in Capt. Davenport's company, at the Narragansett fight, and was wounded. He was received as an inhabitant of Sherborn, in April, 1679 (Framingham not being then a town). He appears to have been on the committee to procure the act of incorporation for the town in 1699, and signed in that character the answer to the remonstrance from Sherborn, preserved in Barry's Framingham, p. 39.

After the incorporation, it was voted in town meeting, Aug. 21, 1700, that Mr. Joseph Buckminster, Isaac Learned and John Heaver, should be the men to go and discourse with a lawyer about "our aggrieved neighbors" (Barry, p. 44). He was selectman in 1692, 1698, 1706, 1711; fence-viewer in 1681-2. With his brother Benoni and others, he signed a petition, Oct. 13, 1680, in aid of the petition of the inhabitants of Sherborn for the removal of obstructions to the Rev. Mr. Gookins' settling among them; representing that they had taken up lots in the plantation of Sherborn and paid their share of charges thereon, and were only waiting for the settlement of an able minister; some of them being settled there already. (Vol. 112, p. 319, State Records, Boston.) He died Sept. 15, 1737. June 27, 1710, each man taxed to procure a stock of ammunition. Isaac Learned's tax, 3*s.* 2*d.*, none exceeded his. John Bigelow, the father of Isaac Learned's wife, was a blacksmith, and was selectman in 1665, '70, '71. For his family and for that of Mary Warren, his wife, see Bond's Watertown.

A fac simile of Isaac Learned's signature.

20 xi Martha[4], b May 21, 1702; m. Jacob Cummens of Oxford. She had an only child Jacob, b. Sept., 1724; d. Dec. 1, 1745, "in the service of his Master." She d. Sept. 17, 1732, and he m., second, Huldah, and had two sons; and m., third; Elizabeth Early, Feb. 22, 1736, and had seven children.

9 BENONI[3] (Isaac[2], William[1]), probably so named because he was born on the day of his father's death or within a day or two of that event; m., at Sherborn, June 18, 1680, Mary Fanning, dau. of Thomas and Elizabeth (Daniel) Fanning, b. Oct. 27, 1662, who d. Oct. 14, 1688, in childbirth, and he m. second Sarah Wright, of Sudbury, who was received to the church (1690.) She d. Jan'y 25, 1736-7. He was the second deacon of the church, and was constable 1682; selectman, 1690, 1693, 1695, 1697, 1700, 1710. He was early in Sherborn and resided where the late Dr. Wythe resided. He is one of the signers to a petition for the settlement of difficulties in regard to the meeting house, to enable the people to settle Mr. Daniel Gookin, Oct. 13, 1680. (Minutes Gen. Court, vol. 112, p. 317.)

In 1699, he was on a committee for laying out lots, and had lots assigned to him; was rated 1686 for the Indian title, and drew 138 acres of land in Douglas; twelve years, selectman, one year, representative. One of the signers of agreement for government of Sherborn 1679, on committee for repairing meeting house 1706, with Corp. Isaac Learned and others.

In Judge Sewall's Journal under date of Wednesday, Apr. 14, 1703, Deacon Learned is mentioned as with him while he "renewed the bounds of the farm Moses Adams lives on." His name is signed to an agreement relative to lands in Bogestow, occurring in Sherborn records of births, 1688-9.

"The excellent Deacon Benoni Learned," says Rev. Mr. Morse, "served Sherborn as treasurer, selectman, representative in the general court, and for a long period in his early history his name is conspicuous, and it is evident that he was a man of sound and consistent piety." He died April 10th, 1738. His will, written Jan'y 12, 1736-7, proved April, 1738, mentions his wife Sarah; son Edward, heirs of son Thomas; grandson Benjamin Bond, son of daughter Mary; daughter Hannah, wife of James Leland; daughter Sarah, wife of Isaac Kendall; daughter Elizabeth, wife of Timothy Leland; daughter Tabitha Dewing's heirs; daughter Abigail; daughter Thankful; daughter Bathsheba, wife of Josiah Hendee. Edward was executor. No mention is made of a widow in the administration papers. His wife seems to have died a few days after the will was executed. Dr. Bond says she survived her husband; perhaps his reason for this statement is because she is named in the will. His second wife was a dau. of Capt. Edward Wright of Sudbury, and with others released her rights in her father's estate to her brother Samuel. June 15, 1708 Rec. of Deeds Midd. XVI. 491.

In the fourth generation then, we have, probably, of those who bore the name of Learned and left male descendants only the following; Isaac[4], William[4], Ebenezer[4], Moses[4], Thomas[4], and Edward[4]. The increase had been small. It was much larger in the next generation. Isaac[4], and Ebenezer[4], settled in Oxford, Mass., and became the ancestors of the Oxford families. William[4], in Killingly, Conn., and became the ancestor of the Killingly family. Moses[4] settled in Framingham, and from him comes the Templeton branch. Thomas[4], settled in Watertown; Edward[4], in Sherborn, and the Dublin family is descended from him.

10 ISAAC[1] (Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of Framingham, married November 19, 1706, Sarah How, of the same place. She was born December 24, 1686, and was the daughter of John How and Elizabeth Woolson (Barry's Framingham, p. 293, 449). Three of his children were born in Framingham. He was one of the first settlers of the town of Oxford, where the rest of his children were born. He died May 20, 1753. And in that year his son Isaac discharged Josiah, Joseph and John, his brothers, and Jeremiah and Samuel Shumway, William Davis, William Lamb and Samuel Robinson, his brothers-in-law, from the care of their mother. (Prob. Rec. Worcester, vol. iv, p. 466). (Appendix C.)

His brother Ebenezer came with him to Oxford, and both of them became prominent and active men. On the division of the proprietor's lands, January 18, 1714, to each man of the ninety families, thirty acres for a house lot, Isaac drew lot No. 5, some three-quarters of a mile from Moses Learned's, at the extreme east corner of the township, not far from the Peter Shumway lot, about one mile south-east from Oxford plain; which has ever since been owned and occupied by his descendants. The house which he then built is not now in existence. It is not known in precisely what part of the burying ground Isaac and his family are laid.

He and his wife were among the thirty-two members who formed the first church at Oxford, in 1720, under the pastorate of Rev. John Campbell. He was town clerk for five years from 1732, and he had the rank of lieutenant.

14 WILLIAM[4], (Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of Killingly, or Thompson, Conn., married Nov. 24, 1715, Hannah Bryant. She was born in 1696 or 7, and was the oldest of the seven daughters of Simon and Hannah Bryant, of Killingly, Conn., formerly of Braintree, Mass. This was the first marriage performed by Rev. John Fisk, the first clergyman of the church at Killingly. William Larned had moved from Framingham, and had bought land in the north part of Killingly in 1712, eighty acres on the road leading to Meriden, now in Putnam. His name appears on the tax list of 1716. Some time afterwards he moved to Sutton, where the birth of his son Samuel is recorded. He was one of the original members of the church at Sutton, and on the 8th of March, 1720, was on a committee to acquaint Rev. Mr. McKinstry that the town had given him a call. He sold his first purchase in Killingly and he bought other land there from Daniel Cady, May 2, 1721, and in the deed is described as of Sutton. He probably removed back to Killingly soon afterwards. He purchased also a valuable piece of land near the falls, now in Putnam. In subsequent deeds and divisions of land he is described as of Killingly. In a division of land in Killingly to Joseph Davis of Oxford, Feb. 22, 1723, his house, farm, etc., are repeatedly spoken of. He was admitted to the church in Thompson, July 12, 1731, on a certificate from the church in Sutton. The parish of Thompson had formerly been the north society of Killingly, and had recently been organized as a parish. Simon Bryant was one of its prominent members. (Miss Larned's History of Windham, Vol. 1, p. 313.) William Larned lived in this town; was chosen deacon, June 7, 1742, surveyor of highways in 1729; selectman from 1740 to 1744, and town treasurer from 1742 to 1746. In this last year the town voted him £1.15s. 4d. for his good service. His name appears frequently in conveyances of land on the records. In the Proprietor's Book of Killingly fol. 56, is the record of twelve acres laid out to him, Feb. 15, 1721, for his first division right of land; and about the same amount two years after for his second. (Same book, fol. 39.) In several deeds he is described as a "cordwainer."

His will, made April 13, 1747, gives his wife the use of half his house and barn and one-half of the income for her support in bringing up his children until his son Asa should arrive at 21, if she should remain his widow. In case she should marry, it gives her £200 "according to bills of publick credit of the ould tenour." It gives several pieces of land to his sons, William, Abijah, James and Asa, and sums of money to Samuel, Simon and Ebenezer, and mentions that his father-in-law, Simon Bryant, had chosen Simon "to be an heir to his estate from among his brethren." (Plainfield Prob. Records, Aug. 11, 1747.)

He died June 11, 1747. His widow m., Oct. 17, 1755, Joseph Leavens, Esq., of Killingly, and d. April 12, 1781, aged 84. An anecdote in regard to her conduct during the "Tory Alarm" may be found in "The History of Windham County," vol. ii, p. 171. Their tombstones are in the old Killingly burial grounds (1880).

Simon Bryant, above mentioned, was m., Dec. 28, 1694, by Lt. Col. Edward Quincy, to Hannah, daughter of George Spear and Mary, his wife, b. Sept. 6, 1671. George Spear came to this country and settled in Braintree. (Braintree Records.) Simon Bryant d. Sept. 28, 1748, aged 84 years 9 months. Hannah, his wife, d. Dec. 28, 1747, aged 76 years. (Old Killingly burial grounds.)

Children :

44 i Hannah[5], birth not recorded, probably the oldest child; d. Nov. 17, 1735.
45 ii Samuel[5], b. Dec. 28, 1718.
46 iii Simon[5], b. Feb. 10, 1721.
47 iv Ebenezer[5], b. Mar. 11, 1723.
48 v William[5], b. Apr. 15, 1725.
49 vi Abijah[5], b. Apr. 26, 1729.
50 vii James[5], b. Dec. 24, 1733.
51 viii Asa[5], b. March 29, 1736 ; d. unm.

15 EBENEZER[4] (Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of Oxford, married, Oct. 14, 1714, Deborah Haynes, b. at Sudbury, Jan'y 30, 1690 ; doubtless the fourth child of John and Ruth Haynes, of Sudbury, and sister to Josiah Haynes, octogenarian, killed at the battle of Concord, April 19, 1775. He was one of the first settlers of Oxford, with his brother Isaac; and his eldest child Dorothy was the first child born there. On the division of the proprietor's lots, he drew No. 19, about four miles from Isaac's, in what is now known as North Oxford. The dwelling house which he then built, with an addition to it some years later, is large, and is still (1875) in good habitable condition. The old west part was, until about 1870, covered on the sides with the original shingles. During the few first years of his living in it, it was picketed, to protect it from the hostility of the Indians. It has the ancient large fireplaces and the huge chimney in the centre. There his nine children were born, and from that house all, but the two who died at the opening of womanhood, were married in early years of life. There he and his wife lived and died, and there they were succeeded by three successive generations of descendants.

He and his wife were two of the first thirty-two members of the first church established in Oxford. On the 29th of July, 1714, it was voted "to build a meeting-house 30 feet square and 18 feet stud." This stood near the north-east corner of the old burying ground on Oxford Plain. In 1748, when a larger house was built, he gave the land and "commons" around it, one mile south of his house on the spot on which the old town house stood. In 1752 the town voted to accept the report of the committee appointed to dignify and appraise the pews. To dignify was probably to designate according to the rank of the occupant. In the list of pews, his was one of the highest in valuation, viz. £52. 16*s*. 0*d*. That of his son-in-law, Samuel Davis, was of the same value. Those of Elijah Moore and of Edward Davis, two other sons-in-law, were respectively £51. 10*s*. 0*d* and £51. 18*s*. 0*d*. The pews of the three sons of Isaac Learned, who died about this time, were valued each at about £22. He was a town officer and justice of the peace in 1712. In the list of representatives to the general court for 1726 and 1730, he is named Capt. Ebenezer Learned, in 1751 as Col. Ebenezer Learned, and he is so named on his grave stone.

In 1754 he and Edward Davis, the husband of Abigail, purchased about 2500 acres in the north part of Oxford, much of it in the new town of Charlton, from the Whateleys of England. It is supposed to have cost £870. On portions of this Edward Davis settled four of his sons, Ebenezer, Jacob, Reuben and Levi. Ebenezer Davis became wealthy. Part of this land was afterwards in the possession of Ebenezer, the eldest son of Col. Ebenezer Learned. Just at the close of the revolutionary war, this son, Gen. Ebenezer Learned, built on this land a large house, which he occupied till his death. His son, Col. Sylvanus succeeded, and Abisha, the second child of Sylvanus, succeeded him.

The property finally passed, in March, 1872, to O. F. Chase & Co., after having been in the family one hundred and twenty years.

Col. Ebenezer Learned also purchased three hundred acres in the County Gore, of the committee appointed to sell the same. He bequeathed to his eldest son four hundred acres upon Stony river: now known as the French River. His homestead farm was estimated to contain 1000 acres. He was the largest landholder in Oxford. He built a dam and sawmill on his estate previous to 1728. This mill was run until 1859, when it was torn down and factories erected at the place.

By his will dated Sept. 9, 1767 (Worcester Prob. Rec. vol. xii, p. 30), he gave the homestead farm to his youngest son Jeremiah, on condition that he should maintain his mother, Deborah Haynes Learned, "and my black man, Mingo, to wait upon her, during their natural lives, out of my estate, in sickness and in health, he finding everything necessary and convenient for his mother according to her rank and circumstances and to pay all necessary funeral charges, as also Mingo's." Other devises in the will show him to have been the owner of much land. His wife was known as Madam Learned and tradition speaks of her as a woman of unusual ability.

The country at that time was newly settled. Indians were frequent guests, seeking hospitality and asking charity. It is told that one evening, at dusk, an Indian came to the house of Col. Learned asking for food and for a night's lodging; both of which were granted. He was to sleep before a log fire in the "old west room," which was the part occupied by the family to live in. The colonel slept in his bed in the same room. During the night he was awakened by the movements of the Indian, who was standing over him by the bedside. When the Indian saw that the colonel was awake, he said: "You're a pale face, me kill you." Col. Learned was a large and powerful man. He sprang from the bed, knocked the Indian down and dragged him out of the house. Nothing more was seen of this Indian until about a year, when he returned, bringing a deer skin, and saying as he presented it to the colonel: "You're a brave."

Mingo, mentioned in the will, was an intelligent native African, a chief in his own country. He was either dumb, or he successfully feigned to be so. His shoes, of the largest size, and his copper spoon and the block on which he used to sit in the corner of the fireplace in the "old west room" were preserved until within about a generation since. (Miss Martha E. Stone, of North Oxford.)

Col. Ebenezer Learned died March 15, 1772. His widow, Aug. 21, 1777. His will, above mentioned, speaks of his wife Deborah; dau. Dolly, wife of Elijah Morse; dau. Abigail, wife of Edward Davis, Esq.; dau. Mary, wife of Richard Moore, Jr.; dau. Ruth Davis, dec'd.; dau. Comfort Mower, wife of Samuel; son Capt.

Ebenezer to whom he gave 400 acres in Oxford; son Capt. Jeremiah. Children :

16 SAMUEL[4] (Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), belonged to Capt. Lovewell's company sent against the Indians, 1725 (N. E. Gen. Reg. vii, p. 64; See Palfrey's N. E. IV. 442). He was a petitioner from Petersham for services under the late Capts. Lowell and White, as volunteers ; and probably received a tract, No. 24, being the home lot, or first division, in the township given to Capt. White's volunteers for services; which lot by deed, dated Apr. 12, 1735, and recorded in Worcester County Records, May 14, 1735, he conveyed to "Ebenezer Dagget, of Sutton, County of Worcester." In the record of this deed he is described as of Medford, in the County of New Haven, Colony of Connecticut. This is probably a mistake, as there was no Medford in Connecticut. Probably Medford, Mass., is intended, where he is said to have lived. It is said that he d. July 20, 1741. Nothing more is known of him. His father conveyed to him, Feb. 9, 1729–30, all his right in lands granted to Narragansett soldiers, "said Isaac having been a soldier in said fight," and the next day Samuel conveyed the same to his brother Moses. In this deed he is described as of Kerkemonchick, lying near Oxford.

19 MOSES[4] (Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of Framingham, married in 1725, Lydia, daughter of Simon and Hannah Bryant, of Killingly, Connecticut, above mentioned, a sister of the wife of William Larned. He was selectman in 1747 and 1748 and from June 1726, was deacon of the church for many years; was highly esteemed. On the 23d of Aug., 1737, his father conveyed him half of his lands in Framingham, "in consideration that he has been for a long time a great support to his said father and mother (Sarah) in their old age." He died May 25, 1769, and admin. was granted that year at Framingham. His widow died Oct. 25, 1774. Children:

memorating several persons who were instantly killed by a flash of lightning.

63 iii Simon[5], b. May 25, 1732; d. unm. in the army during the revolutionary war. His grandfather Bryant, by deed dated Sept. 26, 1744, gave him two lots in Killingly, which he sold June 13, 1753. to his cousin Samuel Larned.

21 THOMAS[4] (Benoni[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of Watertown, born at Sherborn; m. Mary Mason, b. May 2, 1685, dau. of Joseph Mason and Mary Fiske, his wife. He was a potter by trade, and kept a tavern in Watertown on the spot where the Spring hotel was built several years ago, long known as "Learned's Tavern."

He was first licensed June 3, 1712. After his death, the business was continued by his widow till 1764, then by his son Abijah, and in 1770 by his son Bezaleel. He was also a miller, and bought the grist mill a few years prior to his decease. The mill is still in operation (1880). He was constable and collector of taxes in 1710-12, selectman 1725 and 1729. He died at Watertown, Dec. 22, 1729. His widow died there 1770. His will, dated Dec. 21, 1729, was proved January 12, 1729-30. Inventory dated March 18, 1729-30, £2,863 17*s.* 11*d.* in which is included servant maid Elizabeth Stanley. The servant maid is valued at £12 ; his oxen at £25. He also owned "considerable of land in the township of Worcester," Penycook, Brimfield, and Brookfield, not included in this inventory. Administration on the estate of his widow, Mary, was granted at Watertown to Bezaleel, May 1, 1770. Amariah is not mentioned in his will ; all the others are mentioned. 49 ABIJAH[5] (William[1], Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), m., Dec. 31, 1753, Anna Wales, dau. of Ebenezer and Esther (Smith) Wales, of Union, Conn. Ebenezer Wales was a large proprietor of land in Union. Abijah's wife is reputed to have been an excellent singer. He is described in a deed of land in Killingly, executed by him, March 6, 1753, as then of Union, where all of his children except the youngest, were born. Several parcels of land in Union were purchased by him, as appears by the records. He and his father-in-law were two of the grantees of the town of Norwich, Vt., under the grant from the governor of the Province of New Hampshire, July 5, 1761. (N. E. Gen Reg. Vol. xxiii, p. 72.) In May, 1772, he removed to Coos Co., N. H. and settled in the town of Cockburn, since called Columbia, having undertaken, in connection with his brother-in-law, Seth Wales, to settle these townships of land belonging to some English gentlemen ; Lord Cockburn and Sir Charles Steward among them. They succeeded in getting the settlement commenced, and thirty-two families on the ground before the breaking out of the revolutionary war. That put a stop to the operations. He was chosen a member of the first revolutionary legislature, convened in New Hampshire, and on his return from its session, was taken sick and died very suddenly of pleurisy at Lancaster, at the house of Seth Wales, about forty miles from home. His son Abel came down the Connecticut river in a birch bark canoe and met the procession bearing his father's body to the grave. He left a widow and nine children, the youngest twenty months old, living nine miles from any neighbor. At the begining of the revolutionary war the scattered inhabitants of that part of the country held a consultation on the subject of breaking up the settlement and returning to Connecticut. They finally left it to his widow to decide. She decided to remain ; but was finally persuaded by her relations in Connecticut to return thither. She stayed there two years, and then went back to New Hampshire and d. at Columbia, Sept. 10, 1807.

58 EBENEZER[5] (Ebenezer[4], Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of Oxford, m., by Richard Moore, J. P., Oct. 5, 1749, to Jerusha Baker, of Oxford. He was a captain of rangers in the old French war, from 1763 to 1767, and was at Fort Edward when Fort William Henry was beleagured. He marched with his company to its relief.

In the revolutionary war he was colonel of a regiment, the third of eight months' men, and marched to Cambridge; reporting himself the day after the battle of Lexington; was at the battle of Bunker Hill, and the siege of Boston; in the evacuation he unbarred the gates with his own hands. At Dorchester he received an injury and was disabled. Afterwards, in April, 1777, he was appointed a brigadier general, by Congress, and commanded a brigade at Saratoga, Oct., 1777, and at the capture of Burgoyne. (Wilkinson's Memoirs; Stone's Campaign of Burgoyne.) He was the first man who entered the breach in the Fort at Stillwater.

The first years of his married life were spent on a farm, which he owned, and which lay about one mile north of his father's, and on the brow of Prospect Hill range. On his return home from the northern army, he built a large house, about three-fourths of a mile south-west from this residence, and on the Leicester road. This has been owned and occupied by four successive generations of his descendants.

In 1774, he was appointed one of the delegates to the provincial congress, at Concord. In 1779, he was chairman of the constitutional convention; and he served many years as a magistrate in his town.

He was one of the original proprietors of the town of Livermore, Me., and one of a committee appointed at Waltham, Mass., to divide the lots at Livermore. On two of these lots he settled his sons, Haynes and David.

He was a man of large frame, over six feet in height, weighing more than 200 lbs; of a fair complexion, with light blue eyes; having a commanding and dignified appearance, which impressed persons somewhat with awe. His wife is said to have been gay and vivacious. She d. Feb. 22, 1799, and he m., May 23, 1800, Miss Eliphal Putnam, of Worcester. He d. 158 AMASA[6] (Ebenezer[5], William[4], Isaac[3], Isaac[2], William[1]), of New London, Conn.; m., by Rev. Ephraim Woodbridge (?), Apr. 1, 1773, Grace Hallam, of New London, b. Oct. 14, 1754, dau. of Nicholas and Elizabeth (Latimer) Hallam, and grand-dau. of Edward and Grace (Denison) Hallam. He graduated at Yale College, in 1772, and came to New London soon after, as teacher in the Union school. A letter from him, dated at New London, the early part of the next year, hints at an intention to study law. In fact, however, he studied for the ministry with Rev. Mr. Atkins, at Killingly, and was licensed by the Windham County Association, Oct. 12, 1773. It is said that he preached for some time at Newport, R. I. A memorandum in an account book of John Adams, made when he staid over Sunday at Woodstock, on his way to the continental congress, refers to Mr. Learned, as follows: "1775, Sept. 3, at Woodstock, heard Mr. Learned from Is. xxxii: 16." It does not appear, however, that he was ever ordained or settled as a clergyman, or that he continued long in the ministry. Some of his sermons remained for a time in the possession of his descendants. He resided in Killingly until 1780, and then moved to New London, and settled there. His wife's family were influential merchants of that place; and he became somewhat prominent in political affairs. In 1788, he was a member of the convention which ratified the constitution of the United States, and voted for it. He was in the U. S. congress from 1791 to 1795, and was also an "assistant" of the State; was a member of the council. While in congress he became engaged in some land speculations which resulted disastrously, and this result seems to have changed the current of his life. From about 1798, he gave up all active pursuits.

He was a man of courteous manners, general information and remarkable inquisitiveness as to all the topics of interest of his day. He was of a dark and swarthy complexion, which, he used to say, he inherited from the Leavens blood. When he was in college he wrote a Latin letter to his brother Theophilus, with postscript: "If you can't read this, show it to Mr. Brown." (The clergyman at Killingly.) In reply Theophilus wrote him a letter in Indian, from the dictation of an Indian servant girl, Molly Piggins, with the postscript: "If you can't read this, show it to some other Indian."

At New London, he lived first, in what was known as the Hurlbut house, on the north-west corner of Federal and Main streets; then moved to a part of the old parsonage house on the upper part of Main St. About 1786, he removed to a house, since taken down, on the north-west corner of State and Union streets, which stood on land now owned by the First Congregational church. He soon afterwards bought a lot on the south-west corner of Federal and Union streets, and began the building of a house; since occupied by the Hallam family. His wife died Nov. 20, 1787, before the house was finished. The family moved into it, and his eldest daughter kept house for him there a few years. The latter part of his life he lived with his widowed daughter, Mrs. Chew, in an old Hallam house upon Main St., above Federal. He died of pleurisy, May 4, 1285. His remains and those of his wife, were deposited in the Hallam tomb in the old burying ground, and have since been removed to the lot of his son, Ebenezer, in the cemetery, "The Cedars," at New London.

The first four of his children were born in Killingly; the three others in New London.

A deed dated Sept. 21, 1795, described him as of Colchester, Ulster Co., N. Y., and conveys to Ephraim Lockwood, of Luzerne Co., Pa., a right in the Connecticut and Susquehanna Company purchase, which he had received by inheritance from his father, Ebenezer Learned, who was an original proprietor in that purchase.

James and Miriam Colt, of Pittsfield, Mass. He graduated at Williams College, and shortly after went to Kentucky and studied law with Henry Clay, in 1808. Upon Mr. Clay's election to Congress, Mr. Larned was riding circuit through Kentucky, when he was overtaken by Col. Thomas Dey Owen, who invited him to his residence. A few days after, at a dinner at Col. Owen's, the principal men of Shelby County being among the guests, word was received from Gen. Shelby, that Gen. Harrison was in great straits, at Ft. Wayne, from Proctor and the Indian Allies, and asking Col. Owens to take immediate steps for his relief. On the spot the entire company pledged themselves to aid in raising a regiment. In ten days the regiment was equipped and mustered, and on the march to Ft. Wayne. This was the famous Kentucky regiment, so massacred at the battle of the River Raisen. It was incorporated with the regular army and with Mr. Larned, as major, participated in the battle of the Thames, where Newcomb was killed by Johnson of the same regiment. It was the regiment whose officers entreated Hull to save them the shame of surrender. A "round robin" which was signed by some eighty citizens and soldiers of Detroit, proposing to defend the fort at all hazards, remained in Gen Larned's possession till the year of his death, and was then given to his son. After the peace, Gen. Larned resigned his position in the army and returned to practice at the bar in Detroit, Mich. He rose rapidly in his profession and till his death, in 1824, was one of the leaders of the Michigan bar. He was an eloquent and successful advocate, of a noble and commanding presence; with a rich and musical voice; clear and concise in arguments; passionate and convincing. As attorney general of the Territory of Michigan, he bore a large part in the framing of laws for her military and educational systems. Larned street in Detroit is named after him. His residence occupied one of its principal corners. He was made brigadier general by President J. Q. Adams. He d. in Detroit, Mich., Aug. 13, 1834. APPENDIX I.

Esther Learned.

It is suggested by Dr. Bond in his history of Watertown, that Elizabeth (No. 18) may have been the Esther who married Thomas Marshall, of Newton. This Thomas Marshall is said to have married Esther Learned of Watertown, Nov. 2, 1715, and to have married second, Abigail, widow of Jonathan Cutler, in 1762, who is mentioned in his will made June 28, 1765. He removed to Holliston; was elected deacon Dec. 25, 1728, and died in 1766. Esther Marshall, "supposed to be his wife," was admitted to the Church in 1729, and died in Framingham, Dec 10, 1761, aged 71. (Barry's Framingham). She must therefore have been born in 1690; and could not have been the same person with Elizabeth, born 1696. She is described as of Watertown, and it does not seem that she could have been the daughter of Isaac[3] or of Benoni[3], neither of whom were of Watertown. It may be that the surname is a mistake.

In Johnson's History of Newton, it is said that Ruth Learned married Dr. Henry Pratt, Dec., 1709. It is not known that there was any Ruth Learned; and there seems to be no one of marriageable age in the family at that time, who could be intended. Neither the name Esther nor the name Ruth appears among the family names.

Coat of Arms.

"He beareth Azure a Saltire engrailed Or, between four diamonds argent. Crest on a wreath a Griffin rampant; by the name of Larnard, granted and confirmed the 4th of Feb., 1582, in the 25th year of the reign of Queen Elizabeth to John Larnard of Fenton, in the County of Nottingham, Esquire, Son and heir of the late Robert Larnard, of Shropshire, M. A."

The foregoing is said to have been found by Samuel Larned (No. 399), of Providence, R. I., when he was Consul at Cadiz. It is said also that he satisfied himself that the descendants of this John Larnard emigrated to North America.

Unfortunately, however, on inquiry made by the late Col. Jos. L. Chester, in 1879, of Garter, King at Arms, the Head of the Herald College, it appeared that there was no record in their books of a grant to John Larnard of Notts; and no such name appeared in the Herald's visitations of Notts or of Shropshire.

APPENDIX M.

John Lerne.

In Broadhead's Delaware Water Gap, at p. 35, among the early settlers of the Minisink are mentioned the Lernes. This family seems to have lived a few miles north-west of the present town of Stroudsburg, and to have been sometimes called Learned or Larned. In Penn. Archives, 1781–1783, at pages 257–260, is an account of the attack of Indians, July 3, 1781, on the family of John Lerne, who lived about 35 miles from Wyoming, when he and his son George and the wife and child of George were killed. At page 766 of the same volume, are the claims of George Learner, and of John Learner for losses. In Dr. Egle's History of Penn. at page 948, this incident is spoken of as the last killing done by Indians, and as occurring in the lower part of Tannersville, in Pocono Township; and the name of the family is given as Larne.

A descendant of that family, living in Berwick, Penn. (1882), writes the name Learn; and states that the family was of Dutch or German origin. Others connected with the family say that it was English and came from Connecticut or Long Island. A conveyance made by John Learn and Catherine Learn, his wife, Dec. 16, 1822, has the signatures written in that manner. So, too, a patent, June 22, 1818, on a warrant dated June 8, 1785, for lands in Pocono Township is to John Learn.

In Miner's History of Wyoming, at page 296, the account of the killing above mentioned, gives the name, "Mr. Larned, an aged man."

There was a log tavern from about 1770 to 1780, or later, at a place since known as Merwin's tavern, then as Merwinsburg, Chestnut Hill Township, Monroe Co., Penn., at a point of the Broad Mountain, known as Poknose Point. In Miner's Hist., pp. 265 and 349 this tavern is called Larner's. In papers and journals of the time, it is called sometimes Learn's and sometimes Larned's. For instance, in Hardenburgh's Journal, published by the Cayuga Co. Hist. Soc., p. 27, under date of May 14, 1779, it is said: "Struck tents, marched for Learn's." The note (24) to this passage says: "Larned's log tavern northwest of Stroudsbury, 28 miles from Easton, and refers to the killing above mentioned of "John Larned." But the authority for that spelling of the name is Miner's Hist.

p. 296, (Gen. John S. Clark). In New Hamp. Hist. Soc. Coll., vol. vi, p. 314, the Journal of Major Daniel Livermore, under date of June 19, 1779, mentions "Larnard's tavern at Poeoogns." A journal of Lieut. John Jenkins of the Rev. Army contains the following: "1781, February 25, * * Encamped at night at the Spring House (two miles west of Wilkeshire). 26, We marched about six o'clock and arrived at Larnard's at 3 in the afternoon. 27, We left Larnard's and marched as far as Heller." In the Orderly Book of Sullivan's March (original in the Library of the New Jersey Hist. Soc.), is the following: "1779, June 18, Heller's tavern. The army will breakfast at Brinker's Mill, and after having received their provisions proceed to Larnard's tavern, where they are to encamp."

Journal of George Grant: "1779, June 19, Marched to Larney's tavern."

Journal of Capt. James Morris: "1779, June 19, Marched 9 miles further to Learner's tavern, Pocono Point."

Journal of Daniel Goskin: "1779, June 19, To Poeono Mount. Point, Larner's tavern."

Journal of Lieut. William Barton, New Jersey Hist. Soc. Proceed, Vol. ii, p. 23: "1779, Thursday 10 June, Proceeded within three miles of Larnard's * * went on to Larnard's, * * cutting a road through from Larnard's, &c."

John Lerne, or Larned, who was killed by the Indians, had at the time two adult sons, John and George. George was married and had a child. It is reasonable to suppose that the grandfather was then at least about fifty years old. There is no one in the preceding pages with whom he can be identified; even if it should be that his name was, in fact, Learned. His widow, his son John and some younger sons survived. The probability is that the true name was Learn, and that the spelling, Larned, and the like are mistakes.

For these details I am indebted to Steuben Jenkins, Esq., of Wyoming Penn.

APPENDIX N.

Col. B. F. Learned.

WAR DEPARTMENT
ADJUTANT GENERAL'S OFFICE.
Washington, Sept. 7, 1862.

GENERAL ORDERS No. 127.— The army will learn with as much regret as the secretary of war feels in announcing it, the death of the late paymaster-general, Col. B. F. Larned, who after a long and painful illness, departed this life on the afternoon of the 6th inst, at his residence in this city.

One of the veterans of our last war with Great Britain, Col. Larned entered the army as ensign of the Twenty-first Infantry, on the 1st of October, 1813, served with distinction through the war, and was breveted captain for gallant conduct in the defence of Fort Erie, where he commanded a company. Retained as paymaster of the Fifth Infantry at the reduction of the army in 1815. he was made deputy paymaster general during the Mexican war, and on the demise of the lamented Towson, succeeded him as paymaster-general of the army.

From that time until overtaken by his last illness, a period of eight years, he continued to discharge the onerous and responsible duties of his office with intelligence, ability and rare integrity. Already an old man when the rebellion broke out, had he simply consulted his own feelings he would gladly have retired; but well knowing that his services were now become more indispensable than ever, and unappalled by the gigantic labor before him, for eighteen months he resolutely persevered at his post, in spite of failing strength and the entreaties of friends that he would spare himself, until, after having thoroughly reorganized his vast department, and just as he was beginning to see things working in it to his satisfaction, his overtasked powers gave way, and, sacrificed to his sense of duty, the life which he had vowed to the service of his country ebbed lingeringly and permanently away.

A man of the most genial disposition, attractive society, and unsullied life; a sincere Christian above all, Col. Larned was deservedly respected and beloved by all who had the happiness of knowing him. May the army, which has reason to proud of such a son, never cease to imitate the virtues of which he was so worthy an example.

The necessary arrangements for his funeral will be made by the military Governor of the District.

As an appropriate tribute to his memory there will be fired at every military post, on the day after the receipt of this order, nine minute guns commencing at meridian. The national flag will be displayed at half-staff from the same hour until sunset of the same day; and for thirty days the prescribed badge of mourning will be worn by the officers of the army. By order,

L. THOMAS,
Adjutant General.

APPENDIX O.

WAR DEPARTMENT,
PAYMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE.

Washington, March 20, 1882.

It has become the painful duty of this office to announce to the pay department the death of Lieutenant Colonel Charles T. Larned, deputy paymaster general, on Friday morning the 17th March, 1882, at Eureka Springs, Arkansas.

This officer has for twenty years been so intimately connected with the active and responsible duties of this Department that it is but bare justice to his memory to put on record an expression of regret at the great loss the Department has sustained, and its high appreciation of his career.

Born in the Army at Detroit, in 1836, and son of the late esteemed paymaster general, Benjamin F. Larned, he was a devoted student of law before the war, and continued those studies, so far as regarded the military establishment, after being appointed paymaster. He thus in every way always aimed to fit himself thoroughly for his profession.

He was during the war for nearly two years chief paymaster at Louisville, Kentucky, and was, with a large corps of paymasters under his orders, charged with the difficult duty of providing for the payment of the armies in the field in the south-west.

The success and skill with which he executed that task are well known. He justly received the brevet of lieutenant colonel from March 13, 1865, for "faithful and meritorious services" during the war.

After the war he visited Europe for his health. Having a rare and discriminating taste for the fine arts, that journey enabled him to gratify it.

He was chief paymaster, department of Dakota under Maj. Gen. Hancock, from 1869 to 1871, and under the same general was chief paymaster military division of the Atlantic, from the summer of 1880 to the date of his death.

He was from September, 1871 to the middle of 1880, principal assistant in the office of the paymaster general and when that officer was absent was charged with the duties of acting paymaster general.

He was never satisfied with the mere perfunctory discharge of his duties, but was conscientious and indefatigable in his labors and researches. and anxious that neither the government nor any one in the army from high to low, should suffer by any delay or neglect.

He had a good intellect, unbending integrity, great firmness and decision of character, and might well have looked forward to a long life of honor and usefulness. Thus cut off in mid career, his deeply afflicted family will have the profound sympathy of the department and the whole army.

Paymaster General U. S. A.
